W. H. P. Physician Calls His Country Dryest in World—retailer the Dog in the Manager, Says Sir Charles Sykes—South Americans Go to Europe for Vacations.

"So far as I know, my country is the driest land in the world," said W. H. P. Moller at the Majestic yesterday in speaking of the climate, at the legislation of Curacao, Dutch West Indies. "We have a so-called rainy season, consisting usually of a few showers during the last three months of the year."

"Agriculturally, therefore, the island is of no importance. Fortunately we are blessed with a splendid harbor, Willemstad, a city of 25,000 population. The coast of Venezuela lacks a harbor, and so Curacao is the gateway to that part of South America. About sixty steamers a month pass at Willemstad."

With the exception of the phosphate mines, all of our industrial pursuits are dependent upon raw material imported from the mainland. Having straw hats with straw woven in South America is the principal industry now, but our oil resources are prosperous and growing in size and importance yearly. Practically all of our food is imported, with American corn meal the most valued item."

"We have all had a period of artificial prosperity," said Sir Charles Sykes, owner of woolen mills in Scotland, who is at the Baltimore with Lady Sykes. "That kind of prosperity, a certain amount of carelessness and elphodness in method. The business man in wartime was willing to bear his full share of the terrible financial cost, in addition to contributing his flesh and blood to the national sacrifice. But he resented the application of the excess profits tax, for he saw that when the slump came he would have little or no working capital. The slump hit America first, but when it came to England the collapse came with startling suddenness. Prices dropped, orders were cancelled en masse. As in the United States, manufacturers wrote down their stocks to a market price, but the retailers would not, and the consumer had to restrict his purchases to bare necessity."

At the Ritz are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Neilson from Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Whitehouse from Newport.

"The people of Northern Mexico have been very friendly to me," declared Robert A. Bremer, a wholesale druggist of Monterey, who is at the Astor. "There is a feeling that grows that Mexicans should work hand in hand with the United States if they want prosperity."

Mr. Bremer is president of a Monterey club which has 1,800 youths among its members and which is run after the fashion of our Y. M. C. A. One of its plans is to send Mexican boys to the United States for their education.

"While there are many Latin-Americans in New York hotels now, and the number of arrivals compares favorably with the average of the last five years, we are not getting full value on account of the difference in money values," said Estabrook Repko, who is at the McAlpin. "Cuba and Porto Rico are the only countries which compare in exchange now with that of the United States. Brazilians and Argentinians, whose money is one-quarter of par value here, are going to Europe for their vacations, for their money is still worth more than that of France, Spain, Italy or Germany. The Peruvian who starts for the United States with a fare of $100 must pay $2,400 for passage."

HERE'S A VACATION STORY.
"It was just before noon," declared Eugene B. Miller, Vice President of the Baltimore, "and an entire family, aided by two porters, left the hotel and went to the gateway of a train leaving for the Adirondacks."

"There were hubby, his wife, three children of various ages and degrees of excitement, the canary and at least six bags. All were going away for the summer except the husband, whose face wore a melancholy look which even the duck trousers, the blue serge coat with its boutonniere, and a general air of jaunty could not dispel. He gazed at his watch, took out the tickets and remarked:

"Well, dear, in ten minutes you'll be gone."
"He spied his silk socks, and did not seem impressed by his sigh. Five minutes passed."

"Now, dear," he said, "better get on the train. I'll miss you so much." He distributed lollipops to the children, slipped an envelope into his wife's hands and said, "Now, can't I get you some candy and some fiction before you go?"

"The wife surveyed him calmly, and then remarked, 'You may get the candy, Henry, but never mind the fiction. Your letters this summer will be fiction enough—I can see that."

"One country in the world which is not menaced by Bolshevism is Roumania," asserted Arthur Ashworth of London, who is at the Pennsylvania. He has travelled all over the world and has spent considerable time recently in Roumania.

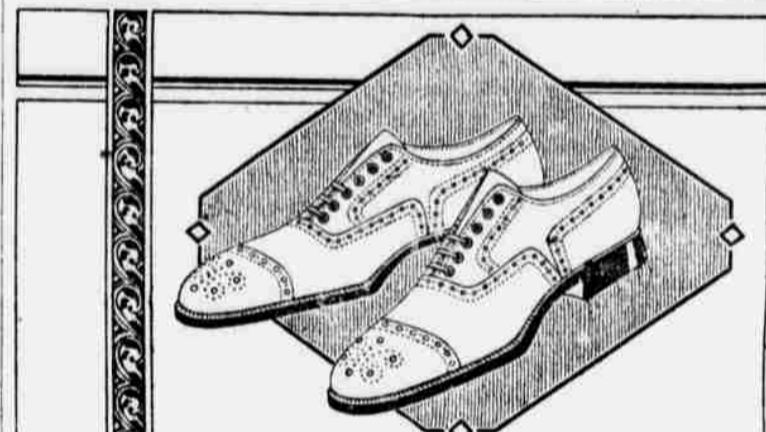

"That country," he said, "lost all its oil fields, which were destroyed by the Germans, but in the last two years it has been energetically recovering. Roumania has now the only oil-producing fields in Europe, though those of Galicia will soon start again. The peasants there are well off and are peaceful and industrious. They will have nothing of Bolshevism."

The Ovington Sale Closes Saturday, June 18.

AMONG a host of other things, there are marvelous mirrors. And until the day that Ovington's moves to its new home all are discounted at 10% to 50%.

Mrs. Wallace bought a bolt of Boott Toweling

Boott Toweling is full 18-inch width, in 25 or 30 yard bolts. Also in 36-inch hemstitched towels.

She wanted to try this material because she had seen it advertised in the women's magazines. From that one bolt she made four roller towels and twelve full-sized towels.

Mr. Wallace tried one of the towels. It dried his face and hands so quickly and felt so good after his morning shave that he uses these towels altogether now.

Boott Toweling launders easily, irons like new and retains its bright whiteness. It is soft and has plenty of body to it, so that it absorbs moisture quickly and never becomes soppy. It is a good practical toweling for everyday use.

Buy it by the bolt from your dealer. If he cannot supply you, write us.

The MEN'S Semi-Annual Clothing Sale is the BIG News

250 Women's Wool Knit Bathing Suits at $3.95

If you were to hear the name of the maker of these suits, you would recognize it immediately as a standard name for excellent wool knit bathing suits.

If the suits were perfect, you would have to pay $7.75 to $12.50 for them.

They are absolutely correct in cut and shape; smart in mode; practical, and in exquisite color combinations vivid and subdued. But there are little flaws which prevent us from selling them as perfect. Puzzle—find the flaws. They won't affect the wearability.

Wide choice of models.

50c rubber diving caps—30c

Excellent heavy rubber. The sort that every woman who swims needs.

Satin bathing shoes, $3

100 pairs new satin bathing shoes in black, purple, green and white, with heavy rubber soles; two straps and buckles; $3 pair.

Second Floor, Old Building

Light Summer Wraps for women, $32

(because specially purchased)

The straight cape with two rows of very deep fringe.

The loose wrap with the half-cape sleeves.

The long mandarin coat with the flared sleeves.

In fine tricotine and soft cut bolivia cloth; black or midnight blue, lined with pussywillow silk.

They are the sort of wraps that every woman needs in the summer—to throw on over her afternoon frock, or to wear on cool days or evenings, whenever a light wrap is desired.

Second Floor, Old Building

Silk Princess Slips for summer frocks

The vogue of the slim little chemise frock has made a one-piece slip of this type made of pink or white silk an indispensable accessory of a smart woman's wardrobe.

At $8.95

Models of satin or crepe de chine, with deep shadow-proof hem to the hips, or, if a lighter slip is desired, with a narrow hem headed with rows of hemstitching.

At $11.75

Model of a lovely soft quality of taffeta, with pin turned hem, and bodice trimmed with motifs in hemstitching.

At $13.75

Model of same soft taffeta, showing smart arrangement of wide tucks finished with novel stitching on bodice and straight skirt.

Third Floor, Old Building

A Morning Coat Exquisitely dainty

Simple as can be—just a little coat of soft crepe de chine in the frailest tones of pink or blue.

Its only adornment is a frill of lace. But therein lies its charm. For it's the daintiest frill of lace you ever did see—and it gives the little coats such delightfully graceful and becoming lines.

A ribbon girdle in a delicate contrasting color and here and there a tiny silk blossom adds other notes of daintiness.

Price $22.50.

A special purchase of sports skirts that comes, as this does, at the beginning of the sports skirt season, is a rarity. We are delighted to be able to present it to you.

Variety of models

Tailored and pleated. Exquisite pastel tints. Black and white. Beautiful, crinkly sports silks and crepes.

You will be glad of at least one of these to take with you on your summer vacation.

Second Floor, Old Building

EXQUISITE Hand-made Lingerie at $2.95 and $3.95

Just unpacked.

And each lovely piece is just as dainty and summery as it can be. That it is entirely made by hand is only one of its charms. Its hand embroidered designs are lovely and the handkerchief batiste of which it is fashioned is soft and sheer.

Models are charming.

There are embroidered nightgowns and envelope chemises, in a variety of models at each price. The simple tailored style finished with hemstitched folds that is so much favored is included.

Third Floor, Old Building

Quite successful Summer Corsets

They are PARISIENNE corsets—and much of their success is due to the clever construction and skillful boning, of which the French corsetier who designs and builds them is a master.

With exquisite grace of line they combine lightness of material and construction that endures, yet makes them cool and comfortable for summer wear.

Made in America

At $5—pink batiste for slender or medium figures—low or medium bust, medium hips—lightly or firmly boned.

At $7—pink batiste for very slender figures—no bones over hips—elastic waistline.
